2016 THIRD YEAR THEME PAPER

GUIDELINES

Students complete a Theme Paper requirement in their third year of study. The Theme Paper should be a publishable conceptual paper that reviews the literature in the student’s chosen sub-field, and, in doing so, puts forth and defends a thesis.

This requirement is fulfilled by approval of the Theme Paper by a committee consisting of two Senate Faculty members in the School of Education, with final review by the Ph.D. Steering Committee. The committee members is appointed by the Ph.D. in Education program director, typically in consultation with the student’s advisor.

Within 10 days of receipt of the paper, the committee provides one of two marks: Pass or No Pass on the first round, and Pass or Fail on subsequent rounds, and also provide a written commentary for the student. The Ph.D. Steering Committee will review the scoring and the Dean will provide written notification of the Committee’s decision to each student.

Papers given a Pass successfully complete the requirement. Students who receive a No Pass on the first round will have 30 days to revise and resubmit their paper for a second scoring by the committee. Students who receive a Fail on the second round are placed on Academic Probation with consequences, and given 30 days for one final attempt to pass. Students who receive a second Fail will be recommended to the Graduate Dean for Disqualification.
